Pension Reversals.

Former Decisions Overruled by Assistant Secretary Bussey.

A FEW OF THE RECENT ONES.

A More Liberal Construction of the Pension Laws—The Pensacola Afloat—New Appointments—Other Dispatches from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Assistant Secretary Bussey is giving a more liberal construction to the pension laws than has heretofore been given, and each day a number of former decisions of the pension office are overruled. Among other recent reversals are the following: In the case of Henrietta Breckenridge, a colored woman, who applied for a pension as a dependent widow of Olmsted Breckenridge, Company K, One Hundred and Twenty-third U. S. C. T. He reverses the pension office decision. Her application was first rejected on the ground that she was not his wife, as they were both slaves at the time of his enlistment, and lived in Kentucky where the law did not recognize the legality of marriage among slaves. Assistant Secretary Bussey holds that the point is not material, and as they cohabited directed a pension to be issued.

GEN. CYRUS BUSSEY.

John Miller, Company C, Second battalions, Sixth National Guard cavalry, has been allowed a pension after the pension office had rejected his claim on the ground that disability did not develop until after his discharge and that disease was not contracted in the line of service.

Sarah Jane Morgan, mother of William Morgan, of Company A, of United States artillery, has been allowed a pension on new evidence adduced to support her claim.

Simon B. Williams, Company A, Thirty-fifth Ohio Volunteers, has been allowed a pension for the loss of two fingers by the accidental discharge of his gun. His claim was first rejected by the pension office on the ground that there was no record of his being attached to the regiment at the time an accident occurred; but Assistant Secretary Bussey holds that the evidence of the officers and comrades of Williams is sufficient even in the absence of the official record.

The Pensacola Afloat.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A report that the Pensacola had suffered severely from the accident to her during the storm of Saturday, gained some credence at the navy department today. It was said that no precautions had been taken to prevent the vessel from sinking in her dock, although there were a number of sailors and marines on board. Secretary Tracy heard the rumors and immediately telegraphed to the commandant of the Norfolk navyyard asking if the report were true. An answer was received that the Pensacola is floated and has not been strained. The commandant thinks that the accident will not cause over a week's delay on the work of fitting the vessel for sea.

After a Fine Position.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—There is quite a warm contest for the position of superintendent of foreign mails in the postoffice department. The position pays $3,500 a year, and is especially important this year, as the new superintendent will have to attend an international convention in Europe about postal matters, where only the French language will be used in debates and proceedings. Among those who aspire to the place are mentioned: J. S. Crawford, formerly superintendent; Mr. Newton M. Brook, at present chief clerk in the office; Cornelius McBride, of Missouri; W. L. Sword, of Iowa, and W. A. Knapp, of Ohio, at one time chief clerk of the postoffice department.

Getting Ready for the Rush.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Jacob C. Robert, register at Kingfisher station, and John T. Dille, register at Guthrie, Oklahoma Territory, are in the city and were yesterday at the land offices where they received verbal and written instructions in regard to the duties of their office. They also received large supplies of official stationery, and papers to be used in settlers making entry on Oklahoma lands. Messrs. Robert and Dille will leave the city in a few days for their respective posts to be in readiness for business at noon on April 22, the day on which the territory opens for settlement by the terms of the president's proclamation.

Death of a Retired Navy Officer.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Rear Admiral Thomas Harmer Patterson, a retired naval officer, died at his home in this city yesterday at the advanced age of 69 years. Admiral Patterson was born in Louisiana in 1820. He entered the navy as a midshipman in 1836, and during the war of the rebellion served as a commander. His last sea duty was on the flagship Tennessee, as commander of the Asiatic station from 1878 to 1880. His appointment as rear admiral was made in 1877, and on May 10, 1882, he was placed on the retired list.

New Appointments.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Secretary Noble has made the following appointments: W. T. Ford, District Columbia, chief of record division, pension office, vice C. E. Faulkner, resigned; Calvin S. Montague, Michigan, member of board of pension appeals; John H. Benton, Indiana, principal examiner in the pension office; Tobe Hert, Indiana, special agent to investigate Indiana depredation claims at $8 per day.

An Interior Appointment.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—John K. Miller, of Tennessee, has been appointed a watchman in the interior department. Mr. Miller was in the late war, the colonel of the Thirteenth Tennessee cavalry. His command overtook the famous raider, John Morgan, and his forces at Greenville, Tenn., and in the action which followed Morgan was killed.

New National Banks.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The acting comptroller of the currency has authorized the Owensboro National bank of Kentucky, and the First National bank of Montrose, Cal., to begin business with capital of $125,000 and $50,000 respectively.

The Harrisons Are Better.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The president has abandoned his proposed cruise in the Chesapeake bay for the present, as Mrs. Harrison's health has greatly improved, and he is as vigorous now as he has been for many years past.

TERROR AT SEA.

Experience of the Steamer Chattahoochee in the Gale Off Boddy Island.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The steamer Chattahoochee arrived from Savannah yesterday. The vessel was three days over due and came up to her pier in a battered condition. The 135 passengers quickly quitted the vessel, glad to once more reach terra firma.

While off Boddy island Saturday morning, twenty-four hours after leaving Savannah, the Chattahoochee encountered the heavy gale which proved so disastrous in southern ports and sunk the Pensacola in the Norfolk navy yard. A hail storm was met and the deck was at one time covered with pieces of ice to a depth of two feet. The gale raged all day with increasing violence.

On Sunday morning at 5:30 o'clock, while the passengers were rocking in their berths, a giant wave broke over the deck, carrying away a section of the bullwarks, and smashing in the side of the saloon. Another and another wave followed, flooding the saloon and the long tier of sleeping berths. Passengers awoke panic stricken to find themselves in several feet of water and more pouring in. Women and men rushed from the state rooms crying. Many ran around like maniacs. Others made rush for the life-preservers and tried to make their way on deck.

Capt. Daggett and his officers tried to calm the passengers, but with small success. For two days many of the passengers were on their knees in prayer. The captain stopped the engines on Sunday, and the vessel was allowed to drift for forty-eight hours. He used all the oil on board in an effort to break the combing of the waves.

It was not until Monday at 10 o'clock that the engines were again started. The Chattachoochee had drifted 200 miles out of her course. The vessel has several holes in her bow, and part of the bridge is carried away. The port side, from stem to stern, is splintered and smashed. Great damage was done below. Five of the state rooms are completely demolished. Nearly all the crockery and glassware was smashed, and six big mirrors were ruined.

The waves were so high as to reach up to and break the thick glass ventilators on the upper deck and pour down the smoke stack. Capt. Daggett says it was the worst gale he ever experienced, and that during the whole two days his vessel was in the utmost peril. His officers and crew worked to repair the damage done and protect the passengers. The man at the wheel was cut by falling glass, and several others are cut and bruised.

There were eighty-six cabin and forty-nine steerage passengers, thirty of them women. They were in a badly exhausted condition when landed, many unable to walk. One lady was carried down the gangway unconscious and taken away in the cab.

The Chattahooche was to have sailed again for Savannah to-morrow, but she will have to go into dock for repairs, and the City of Savannah will take her place in the Ocean Steamship company's fleet.

After the gale the Chattahoochee passed a dismasted brig and a bark, both in distress. Late Monday night she came across a light ship adrift. She steamed around the latter four times and offered assistance, but it was refused.

A HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

Celebration of the Centennial of the Constitution.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The centennial celebration is going to be a great, grand celebration, the greatest ever before seen in this republic. In the first place there will be the largest and most imposing parade of the National guard of the states which has ever occurred in our history. The forces of the states will be put in line in the order in which thirteen original states ratified the constitution and in which the remainder were admitted to the Union. It will probably take seven or eight hours for them to pass a given point.

Foreign born citizens, Germans and Irish more especially, are making great preparations for the civil and industrial procession of the celebration, and every art and industry will have its representation. The Roman Catholic societies will swell the numbers in line with many thousands. "Those will be three memorable days in our history, April 29, April 30 and May 1," says The Sun. "You can't stop it, you can't belittle it; you can't lessen its importance by ridicule of any committee of amateurs. It is going to be a wonderful celebration."

A Telescoped Car.

Serious Railroad Collision Occurs on the Santa Fe Road.

FOUR PEOPLE ARE KILLED,

While Several Others Are Seriously Injured—List of the Dead and Wounded. The Brakeman's Story—The Road Completely Blocked.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Details of an accident which occurred on the Chicago, Santa Fe and California railroad, near Joliet, yesterday have been received here. It resulted from a collision between a passenger and a freight train. Three persons were killed outright, and several were more or less seriously injured.

The rear car attached to the train was the private car of Mr. J. F. Hart, mayor of Brookline, Mass., and a director of the California Central railroad. The party in the car consisted of Mr. Hart and his wife, his son, Henry Robert Hart; his neice, Miss Winslow; a porter known only as Harry, and a cook. Just as the train was pulling out of the station an extra fast stock train, following, ran into the rear of the passenger train at a good speed, demolishing the private car and damaging the freight engine. Large quantities of steam escaped, scalding those who had escaped from the effects of the crash.

As soon as the wreck could be cleared to allow of the removal of the dead and wounded, they were found to be as follows:

Killed: Robert Henry Hart, of Boston; Miss Alice Wenslow, of Brooklyn; Harry, the porter, of Los Angeles; Thomas Smith, cook, of Los Angeles.

The wounded are: J. F. Hart, and wife, of Boston, probably fatally; Henry W. Lamb, of Brooklyn, fatally; P. L. Palmer, brakeman, of Chicago, seriously scalded and bruised.

The engineer and fireman of the freight train jumped and escaped injury. None of the cars, except that of Mr. Hart, was seriously damaged, and none of the passengers in the other coaches were hurt. It is impossible as yet to locate the blame for the disaster. The dead and wounded were put upon the train and brought to this city. The bodies of the dead were taken to an undertaking establishment and the wounded were conveyed to Mercy hospital, where they are now.

The fireman of the wrecked passenger train was seen, and finally induced to talk. "My engine is D 551, and you can bet we are not to be blamed for the accident. It was pitch dark when the crash came, and we stopped our engine as quick as we could. We were running on time, but the freight was an extra. When she struck us every coupling on our train was broken. Even the coupling on the tender of our engine was broken in two. The freight engine ran right through the last coach, and then the boiler burst. The cries of the dying and injured were simply awful. The boiling water had been thrown over them and their flesh terribly scalded. The brakeman and fireman of the freight must have jumped, because they were not fatally injured."

At the Mercy hospital the injured persons are resting as comfortably as the best medical aid and the tender care of the Sisters of Charity nurses can make them. Dr. Hall, who is the house surgeon, is assisted by Dr. Andrews and two other physicians furnished by the Santa Fe Railway company. Dr. Hall says that Mr. and Mrs. Hart's injuries are very similar in point of the scalds on the feet and limbs, one arm broken and the foreheads of each being cut, but Mrs. Hart has besides these injuries a very large scald on the abdomen.

Mr. Lamb and the brakeman are badly scalded about the face and hands, but Dr. Hall says their injuries are not necessarily fatal. But in each case so large a surface had been affected, that pneumonia might set in any moment and terminate fatally. At any rate, recovery could not be expected for many weeks and perhaps months.

At Hart's Home.

BOSTON, April 11.—John F. Hart, who, with his wife, is reported seriously injured, and whose son, Robert, and his neice, Miss Winslow, are reported killed in the accident on the Atchison, California and Santa Fe road, is a resident of Brookline, Mass. Mr. Hart and party started on February 7 on an excursion to the southwest, and was returning home. Mr. Hart was formerly in the boot and shoe business, but had retired from active business.

H. W. Lamb, who was injured, is the medical officer of the road.

WARING LAW MAKERS.

A State Senator Spits in an Assemblyman's Face and is Slapped in Return.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 11.—A special from Madison to The Sentinel says: There was a most disgraceful scene on the floor of the senate yesterday afternoon. Parties to the affair were Senator Buckstaff and Assemblyman Pratt, both residents of Oshkosh. For some time strained relations have existed between these gentlemen in consequence of difference relative to amendments to the Oshkosh city charter. More immediate cause was the charge made by Senator Buckstaff that Pratt had said of him and it appeared in public print that Buckstaff was little more than an idiot.

The event consisted in nothing less than the despicable act of the senator spitting in the assemblyman's face. Mr. Pratt was much surprised, but recovered himself sufficiently to slap the senator in the face, when he coolly wiped his own face and walked off. The affair has been the occasion of much comment.

Rain Interferes With Evictors.

FORT DODGE, Iowa, April 11.—Dripping April skies came to the relief of the soon-to-be-evicted river land settlers yesterday and proved quite as effective as Winchesters. United States marshals and posses, who were awaiting good weather to move on the disturbed districts, have been delayed by the rains and the settlers have another day's respite. Of one hundred writs of ejectment in the marshals' hands only six have been enforced. The remaining number will be pushed with vigor when commenced.

LORD LONSDALE HAS ENOUGH.

His Overland Trip to the Pole Abandoned. Terrible Experiences.

PORT ANGELES, N. W. T., April 11.—The fishing schooner Cumberland, Capt. Elliott, which arrived here yesterday after a stormy passage of thirty-four days from Kodiack island, Alaska, brings news of Lord Lonsdale, who started upward of a year ago on a trip overland to the North Pole. Lord Lonsdale and a number of Esquimaux and Indian guides reached Kodiack about the middle of February in a famished and exhausted condition. They came from an isolated mission near the mouth of the Kuskewin river, which empties into Bristol bay, and suffered many hardships and privations during the journey of months' duration across the Alaskan peninsula.

LORD LONSDALE.

Lord Lonsdale was severely injured a few days after leaving the mission. While in the lead of his party he slipped and fell into a crevasse. His left shoulder was so bruised that the arm was rendered useless and his hip was all but dislocated, incapacitating him from travel on foot. He was placed on a sled and in that condition transported to Kodiack. The great stretch of territory between the mission and the island was covered to the depth of several feet with light snow. The terrible blizzard that prevailed caught up the light particles in clouds, obliterating all tracks and landmarks familiar to the guides, and making drifts through which it was next to impossible to force a passage.

On February 3 the party reached a lake almost in the center of the peninsula. Lord Lonsdale was somewhat improved by the rest here, and they proceeded to Kodiack. Just before reaching Cook's inlet two of the Aleut guides died, and were buried in the snow. The party was in the last stages of fatigue when they reached Kodiack, and had not food and shelter been found there Lord Lonsdale would have died. He stated that he might remain at Kodiack a week or a month, and perhaps longer, as suited his fancy. He stated positively, however, that he had had enough of Arctic exploration and would return to England soon.

INDIANA ELECTION CASES.

Trial of Martin Dolan, Charged With Illegal Voting.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 11.—William Williams, on trial in the Federal court for bribery, was acquitted yesterday, and the indictment against John Joyce for assaulting a United States officer on election day was nolled. The case of Martin Dolan, a Democrat of Henry county, was then called, and he was placed on trial for illegal voting. In the argument in the case Attorney Cooper declared that had Dolan been a Republican the indictment, like those against nearly all of the Republicans, would have been quashed by the judge.

In closing he was careful to make a statement to impress upon the jury that they were not bound to bring a verdict in harmony with the judge's charge. In embellishment of this statement he also used these words: "I know that the love of party in most men's hearts is stronger than the love of their religion."

Judge Woods turned red in the face, but said nothing. The district attorney gave him a very elaborate defense in presenting the case for the government. The jury has not returned a verdict.

SHOT AT OUR FLAG.

A Dominican War Vessel Fires on An American Steamer.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Capt. Stubbs, of the schooner Carrie A. Bucknam, just arrived, reports that on March 21, when off Saona island at about noon, he sighted a vessel steaming towards the Bucknam from the land some six or eight miles distant. She proved to be a Dominican war vessel. She laid a course to intercept the Bucknam, but could not do so, owing to a strong breeze prevailing, and fell astern some one-half to three-quarters of a mile.

"When nearly in our wake," said the captain, "she fired a shot directly at us striking the water a few yards from our stern. After following us for about two hours she gave up the chase and steamed landwards. She was a low rakish three masted steamer of about 500 tons apparently of French or Spanish build. Her decks were crowded with men. What her errand was could only be conjectured. The American flag was flying at our peak all the time, we having hoisted it as soon as we made her out a war vessel."

THE SECOND TIME.

A Dastardly Attempt to Wreck a Train at Louisville, Ohio.

CLEVELAND, O., April 11.—A special from Canton, O., says that a second attempt was made last night at Louisville, O., to wreck the vestibule train on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railway. Ties were stapped to the track.

An employe of the road discovered the obstruction just before the train was due. He was unable to remove the ties and started east to stop the train. He had no signal, but finding a newspaper in his pocket, ignited it, and waving it over his head, brought the train to a standstill. The train struck the obstruction, but not with sufficient force to cause it to jump the track. The attempt made last week at the same point was by inserting fish plates in the switch.

Send Them Back.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Six English boys, between 6 and 19 years old, who were brought over on the steamer W. Young by a man named Rew, under an agreement to work on his ranch in Iowa a year for their passage money, were detained at Castle Garden yesterday and will probably be sent back.

Condition of Crops.

Another Interesting Paper From the Agricultural Department.

PRESENT PROSPECTS GOOD.

The Average Condition of Crops for the First of April, 1889—Diseases and Live Stock Protection—Result of the Past Mild Winter.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The crop reporting service of the department of agriculture for April relates to the condition of winter grain and of farm animals as they go out of winter quarters. The seeding of wheat was somewhat delayed in the middle states by early autum rains and west of Ohio by dry weather in September and October. Later conditions were favorable in both sections with mild and drier weather in the east and a fair supply of moisture in the west.

In the south the condition of the soil for seeding was generally favorable, and germination was prompt and growth good. In California the autumn rains were followed by a dry season in winter, but refreshing showers in March caused the germination of the lately sown and a vigorous growth of the early seeded area.

There was little winter protection except for a short time in midwinter, in the latitude of heavy winter snows, consequently the more northern breadths are somewhat brown in color, and patches in wet soils are winter killed. Yet the temperature has been so mild, with so few sudden extremes, that the present condition is very good. The plants are generally well rooted and have been growing over a large part of the area through the winter.

The general average condition is 94, nearly the same as the April condition of the crop of 1886; which fell at harvest to 87.8. That of 1888 was 82, and that of the previous year 88.1. The April condition of the large crop of 1884 was 93.4, going up to 98 at harvest. Present condition by principal states is: New York, 94; Pennsylvania, 93; Texas, 97; Kentucky, 97; Ohio, 88; Michigan, 87; Indiana, 94; Illinois, 97; Missouri, 95; Kansas, 96; California, 98. Condition in southern states ranges from 90 to 97. The rye crop is also in good condition, better than that of wheat in Ohio and Michigan, and worse in Missouri, with slight difference in other states. The general average is 93.

The mild winter has been favorable to farm animals, which are generally in high condition. The general average for horses is 98.4; for cattle, 96.9; sheep, 97.4; swine, 95.6.

The estimated losses from disease and all other causes during the past year, have also been much less than usual. That of horses is 1.5 per cent.; cattle, 2.4 per cent.; sheep, 3.8; swine, 6.2 per cent., in each case less than last year.

Asking a Pardon for Oscar Neebe.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Louis Neebe left for Springfield last night, and will lay before Governor Fifer the papers and documents which he has prepared asking for a pardon for his brother, Oscar Neebe, one of the convicted Anarchists now serving a penitentiary sentence in Joliet. The petition which he carries with him bears the names of Chicago's best known citizens, among them that of Senator Farwell, who not only signed the petition but agreed to go to Springfield himself and make a personal plea with the governor for the imprisoned man. Senator Farwell left yesterday afternoon for Springfield, where he will be joined by Mr. Neebe.

Ballot Box Stealer Sentenced.

CHICAGO, April 11.—William Wilson was convicted to-day of the charge of stealing the ballots of the Eighth precinct of the First ward, just after they had been counted on election night, a week ago, and was sentenced to 300 days in the county jail. Judge Prendergast, before sentencing Wilson, said: "The result of the ballot box stuffing in the Fourteenth ward some years ago, which the common council refused to rectify, was perhaps a potent factor in bringing about the Haymarket riot of May 4, 1885.

Believed a Sensational Rumor.

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 11.—It was rumored here and in several cities in Iowa and Nebraska yesterday that ex-President Cleveland had been assassinated by the colored porter of a Pullman car between Philadelphia and New York. The report was believed to be true and created intense excitement. At Creston, Iowa, flags were displayed at half mast and not until dispatches were received from Chicago and Omaha denying the report was the suspense ended.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 11.—In joint assembly at noon the legislature began balloting again for United States senator and the first three ballots, sixth, seventh and eighth, resulted in no decision. Total vote, 99; necessary to choice 50.

Libby Beechler Acquitted.

OMAHA, Neb., April 11.—The jury in the trial of Libby Beechler, who killed Henry W. King, Jr., in the Paxton house a few months ago, returned a verdict of not guilty. The defense was insanity. The smoke was so intense that two-thirds of the department were disabled. Chief Foley was carried out of the building twice unconscious with the smoke he had inhaled.

The sidewalks near the building were almost covered with disabled firemen who were being resuscitated by physicians and nursed by the females living in the neighborhood. Two firemen, Charles McCormick and William Kerns received severe injuries and Fireman A. Baldwin is still unconscious. No fatalities are as yet reported. The loss is estimated at $12,000.

THERE is complaint that insurance companies doing business in Ohio are not obeying the advertising laws.

IT is finally decided that the Republicans will retain control of the Rhode Island legislature. The State is small, but she manages to keep her elections before the public eye as long as any other State.

THE Cincinnati Post is industriously at work securing opinions of the press throughout the State on the action of the U. S Senate in rejecting Murat Halstead, the object being to boom Mr. Halstead as Mr Payne's successor.

IT does not occur that the Working Home for the Blind at Iberia is a great success. There was a resolution up in the Ohio house to reconvey the real and personal property to the Central Ohio College association, but upon a vote it was lost.

A PLAN is now proposed to make another State. It is to take a part of New Mexico and Arizona, sections principally inhabited by white English-speaking people, and ask for their admission into the Union as one State. Agitation for Statehood has already commenced.

MURAT HALSTEAD did not succeed in his object to have Mr. Payne's seat in the U. S Senate contested, but his work at that time was destined, it seems, to bear fruit later on, and the Senate in its spiteful rejection of his appointment to the Berlin mission, by the agitation brought about, assisted maturity. A general discussion has been brought on and the method of purchasing senatorial seats is receiving renewed attention, which cannot but result in good. Such methods are becoming intolerable, and to send Mr. Halstead to the Senate upon such a platform would be a just rebuke to his opposers and also place him where he could do much good.

IN the matter of municipal appointments the Councilmen concluded not to subject themselves to the office seekers, and left the appointive power with mayor, only acting in the confirmation of appointees. The old method of promising everybody a vote worked well for awhile, and when an aspirant for office found he was defeated and was anxious to know the reason he was assured that the promise had been kept, but received in addition the crushing and startling information that he "did not receive votes enough;" but there came a time when the caucus vote was made public—here was the fun—and candidates who had been promised so much found that they had not received a single vote. Hence, the change from the former method was precautionary inasmuch that it relieved the members from any over taxation of their consciences.

The Perfection

Of the age in the medical line is the liquid fruit remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured only by the California Fig Syrup Company, San Francisco, Cal. It is agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach, harmless in its nature, painless yet prompt and thorough in its action.

Sold by H. C. Hoberman & Co. and H. Fiocken & Co., druggists.

—No one can afford to miss hearing Blind Tom, the world famous musical prodigy. At Music Hall Friday night.

—A quiet wedding took place at the Kerr House today noon. John Morthland and Miss Iris Hull were united in the bonds of matrimony by Rev. B Tullos, of Radnor. Both contracting parties are from Galion, and stopped off on their way South to be married in this city.

—A former stock holder of the Ideal Malleable Iron Co. was around town Wednesday attempting to gain the sympathy of the citizens by relating a story which, in his own imagination, was a touching tale of insult and injury, which he had received at the hands of Manager Cushing, at the Malleable Iron works, Wednesday. Upon investigation we learned that the gentleman had called at the office of Mr. Cushing Wednesday morning, and upon the completion of his business had refused to tell his departure, and had defied them to open him, when he was unceremoniously put out.

—Commencing about April 15th, the Erie railway will abandon as far as possible, all Sunday work on their line. No trains except through passenger and perishable freight will be run between the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m. Yard masters will remove all men except one switching crew and agents have received orders to dispose of all office work and relieve all employes possible on that day. This is indeed a grand step in the right direction, and will not only meet with the hearty approval of all employes but the communities along the entire line. Sunday is a day of rest and the Erie railroad deserves credit for the start to properly observe it. The day is not far distant when all railroads will no doubt follow the example set by this road.

—A statistician shows through an exchange that we have about fifteen marriages out of every 1000 persons every year. When 1000 men marry 861 are bachelors and 139 widowers renew the matrimonial yoke. Only ninety-eight widows, however, re marry, so that Wheeler's advice seems to be pretty well observed. Married women live but two years longer than single ones, so that phase of the question need not bother the girls very much. A husband will survive his wife nine years and the wife her husband eleven years, which could be interpreted to the advantage of the old widowers. You had one chance in one hundred of being a twin, and each year the chances are about double that you are an unmarried rather than married, so you had better not be wasting opportunities, young man, if you want to "get settled down."

Clifton.

Nice warm weather.

Monroe Scranton is building a new house.

H. E. Petty moved to Clifton Wednesday.

Kellison Cullins is able to be around again.

Sam. Johnson is going to Oklahoma, I. T., next week.

Mrs. Thomas Charles and children are visiting at Bluffton, O.

Mr and Mrs. Wm. Bam Sunday'd with friends at Marion.

Elmer E Drake has packed his grip and commenced to assess our people.

Ben. McCumber has sold his property and will soon move to Michigan.

Elmer Drake has bought Pete Polson and Ben. McCumber's property, for rent.

Mr. J. Heisler moved into his new residence at Johnsonville Wednesday.

D. H. Clifton & Son ship eggs for hatching, to the far south almost daily.

Sherm Southwick last week sold his fine driving matched team to Scott Rhoads.

Charly Wilkinson, Aaron Sharp and Harry McColly have engaged for the Summer on the Clifton section.

A wedding is to be pulled on the tapis. Let her come. Tin pans and old kettles are plentiful, and the boys are ready.

A letter from Joe Cotterel says he arrived safe at Grant, Nebraska, but in mud up to his neck.

John Vestal was in town Tuesday, and bought two carload of sheep from D. H Clifton.

Harry Wilson, of near Marion, is here this week putting in drain tile on his Clifton farm.

Ed Tonget, of Agosta, is painting Scott Rhoad's residence, which adds greatly to its appearance.

Dennis Fahey, Sr., of Marion, was here Monday visiting his son, Dennis, Jr., who has been bedfast for six months.

We just built a new school house last summer, but it scholars keep increasing as they are now, we will need a larger one soon.

Jesse Robbins, night operator at the depot, is trying mighty hard to kill off the English sparrows in Clifton, with a double barrel shotgun. Two he's already been slain.

Rev. Scott, of Agosta, was in town Wednesday, soliciting cash to pay off the mortgage resting on the M. E. parsonage. He met with success and it is thought that the obligation will be lifted when due.

The postoffice matter here is assuming shape. Mr. A. C. Brady is the latest candidate. Mr. Mohr's scheme to hold on by the appointment of a republican as assistant, and keep the office in his possession and derive the benefit thereof, will not work.

Monday evening David Birch was elected director of the Clifton schools, for three years. The Board of Directors also appointed him clerk, which makes him a member of the Board of Education.

Some of my friends put up a job on me election day, and promulgated a scheme which elected me road supervisor. Now we tell grateful for the honor bestowed, but as we are no expert with a hickory club, which is necessary to get the people out on the roads, we respectfully resigned.

We don't, nor never did, believe in civil service. The law is a dead letter, politically speaking, for the simple reason that no party is going to spend their time and money to sustain itself and allow an opposite one to hold onto the patronage and derive its benefits. We are Andrew Jackson on this matter, and the people know how he stood.

The Old Council Dies and is Superceded by the New. The Mayor's Appointments.

The Council met at the City Hall Wednesday night for the purpose of closing the business and dissolving the old body, and swearing in the members and organizing the new.

Mr. Mang's claim is for $10,500 damages, for injuries alleged to have been sustained by reason of a broken sidewalk on north West street. The committee recommended the disallowance of the claim, and the report was adopted. Then the old Council adjourned.

Keppler's Fortunes.

(Toledo Bee.)

"Keppler's Fortunes," as personated by the ever welcome Gus Williams and his excellent troupe at Wheeler's last evening, was thoroughly enjoyed by an audience which filled the house. The play, recently and expressly written for Mr. Williams gives him a rich and wide field for that humorous delineator of the German character for which he is so famous. The plot is held together by a series of amusing situations and heightened by catchy songs, sung as only Gus Williams can sing them. The rise and fall of the yarn but ever honest Fenton brings to the surface all that is good with some that is evil in the human character. The fidelity to old friends and honest abhorrence of dishonesty when circumstances make him immensely, but fortunately for his own peace of mind only temporarily, wealthy, more than counterbalances the vanity displayed in the futile and amusing attempts to excel in the high station to which he believed his newly acquired riches gives him a clear and undisputed title. The cast of characters is strong.

At Music Hall next Monday night, April 15th.

Anti-Cruelty Heroes.

NEWARK, N. J., April 11.—Deputy Sheriff Cruse Hoey, of East Orange, attempted to arrest two men in that place last night for selling cruelty and revolvers. One of them broke away and began shooting at Hoey who pursued him. The chase lasted three miles without effect. On reaching Bloomfield avenue he jumped into a car standing there, fired at the owner and ran to Newark, where he abandoned his gun and escaped. The other thief, who left his cart and ran away, was captured in East Orange and about $.00 worth of fine cutlery was found in his possession. He gave his name as George L. McDonnell, of 287 Hester street, New York.

Boiler Makers' Ball.

The Huber Boiler makers are sparing no efforts on their part to make their second annual ball a complete success, and will guarantee everyone present a good time. And, not desiring to make any money, but recognizing the good work done in the city by the Marion Relief Association, and wishing to help them as much as possible, the boys have again decided to donate to that worthy organization the balance over and above their expenses.

Balzac's Female Friends.

Balzac met the celebrated Duchess d'Abrantes at the house of Sophie Gay in the time of Louis XVIII. Her high spirits, her knowledge of the world, the strange career she had passed through, rendered her a very interesting object to the author of "La Comedie Humaine." She had a good figure, a pleasant face, chestnut hair, and the prestige of the first real world, of which she had been one of the queens. It is not unlikely that she suggested the glorification of the forties, of which mention has been made, and certainly the vicissitude of her fortune must have supplied to an imaginative mind many sad reflections on the instability of human happiness.

When she published her "Memoirs" Balzac was of great service for her, for he was not a bad hand at driving a literary bargain. But no re-enforcement of her finances proved more than temporary. In the golden days of Napoleon she had contracted an extravagance she never could master. Her circumstances went from bad to worse, and at last, in 1838, the splendid mistress of the most fashionable salon of the empire, after hearing from her sick bed her effects submitted to the hammer, had to be removed to lodgings still more humble, where, in absolute squalor, attended only by her faithful maid, she passed unnoticed from life.

Georges Sand was not introduced to Balzac till 1831. She had then written "Indiana" and he the "Peau de Chagrin," so that both were in a sense established literary people. Balzac, however, had still severe struggles before him, for he was slow in establishing supremacy. He had a sincere admiration for Georges Sand's talents, and it is well known that the character of Camille Maupin, in "Beatrix," was founded on a careful study of the authoress of "Lelia" and the rest. But no friendship existed between the two beyond frank literary comradeship. It seems strange to hear that Georges Sand found Balzac undertaking to read Rabelais aloud, altogether too coarse; indeed, she denounced him, "Vous etes un gros effrontel"—The Gentleman's Magazine.

An Old Time Muster.

A veteran correspondent of The Bucksport Clipper describes a muster that took place in Hampden sixty years ago, of which he was a part. The first sound that struck his ear in the morning was the martial music of the Carmel band, on its way to the field, and soon the road was full of tramping soldiers. The state militia of those days were not required to dress in any but their usual clothing, and their appearance was not brilliant by any means; but the gay uniforms of the Bangor company, Capt. Bryant, the Hampden rifles, Capt. Hannibal Hamlin, and the Hampden light infantry, Capt. Snow, shone out like stars in the leaden sky, and added greatly to the whole display. Capt. Hamlin was every inch a soldier and his horsehair plume was a sight to see. One novel feature of the Hampden muster was the "sailor company." A month before the muster, all the sea faring people, captains, mates and seamen, including some of the larger boys, made up their minds that they would have a little diversion on their own hook and in their own way on the interesting occasion. So they organized a company, drilled and went to muster, too. Their appearance on the field with their white pants, blue jackets, tarpaulin hats with a liberal display of black ribbons hanging as neck bands, was neat and trig, and they were the admiration of all observers.—Lewiston Journal.

Joel Chandler Harris Embarrassed.

As the street car rolled into West End, the other day, an elderly lady remarked:

"Daughter, Joel Chandler Harris lives over that way."

"Does he, ma?" said the younger lady. "Do you know where Joel Chandler Harris lives?" inquired the mother of one of the passengers.

The gentleman addressed blushed a little.

"Um—what does he do?" he asked.

"Oh, he writes things for the paper, I believe," was the answer, "but I don't know. Daughter, what does Mr. Harris do?"

"I don't know, I'm sure," replied the young lady. "I simply heard somebody say that he lived out this way."

Then the gentleman asked the driver if he could point out Mr. Harris' house, and the driver turned red and stated at the questioner and stammered out an answer.

Both ladies looked hard at the stranger and at each other, and suddenly became very silent. The car stopped and Mr. Joel Chandler Harris lost no time in getting out and turning his steps homeward. It gives a man a funny feeling to hear questions asked about him in public by strangers.—Atlanta Constitution.

Slow but Sure.

The old lady who thought her daughter, in playing a slow and majestic piece of music, was "a long while about it," was of that "capable" nature which brooks no delay. There are others of the same disposition.

During a balloonist's recent exhibition in Scotland, a native of the country was intently watching the slow descent of the parachute.

"Dear me," he exclaimed, "how long he is coming doon!"

"Yes, indade, and he is," observed an Irishman, who was standing near; "be-dad, I could come down quicker than that mesilf"—Youth's Companion.

Too Previous.

"Mr. Barker, do you think we will go to the sea or mountains next summer?" asked the power behind the throne, as the family sat about the evening lamp.

"Mrs. B.," answered her husband, "I have not paid the bill for the Christmas present you gave me yet," and dull silence reigned.—The Epoch.

Advice to Everybody

who has a diseased Liver is to at once take proper means to cure it. The function the Liver is designed to perform, and on the regular execution of which depends not only the general health of the body, but the powers of the Stomach, Bowels, Brain, and the whole nervous system, shows its vast and vital importance to human health.

NO HUMAN BEING

should run the risk for a single day of neglecting this important organ, but should promptly get a box of Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills, made by FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa., and use according to directions they will cure you promptly and permanently. Around each box is a wrapper giving full description of the symptoms of a diseased Liver. They can be had of druggists.

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put on earing for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject subsequent thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew the very best health-keeper, life-preserver and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is skimmed down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names curses, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them?

They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine of health.

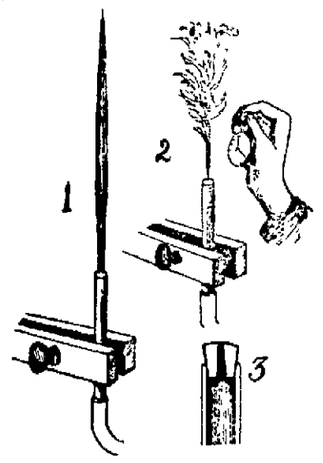
SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

PRACTICAL INFORMATION ABOUT ART, SCIENCE AND MECHANICS.

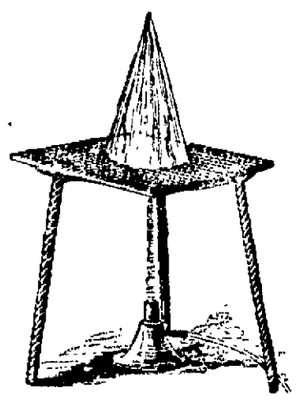
The Sensitive Flame Observed by Dr. Le Conte and Developed by Tyndall, Exhibits Some of the Curious Effects of Sound—How to Produce It.

For the production of a sensitive flame it is necessary that the gas be under a pressure equal to that of a column of water six or eight inches high. The common method of securing the required pressure is to take the gas from a cylinder of compressed illuminating gas. Another method is to take the gas from a weighted gas bag, and still another is to fill a sheet metal tank with gas and displace it with water.



NO. 1—BURNER FOR SENSITIVE FLAME.

The burner is shown in Figs. 1, 2 and 3 of the first cut. It consists of a small tip inserted in the end of a suitable tube. The burner is supported in the manner shown, or other convenient way, and gas under a suitable pressure flows through and is ignited. The flame will be tall and slender, as shown in Fig. 1. By regulating the gas pressure an adjustment will be reached at which the flame will be on the verge of flaring. When the flame is at the point of flaring it is extremely sensitive to certain sounds, particularly those of high pitch. A shrill whistle or or a hiss will cause it to flare. The rattle of a bunch of keys will produce the same result. It will respond to every tick of a watch held near it.



NO. 2—SENSITIVE FLAME WITHOUT EXTRA GAS PRESSURE.

Another sensitive flame, which requires no extra gas and is more readily controlled than the late jet, is shown in the second cut. In the production of this flame a pin hole burner is employed. Two inches above the burner is supported a piece of 32-mesh wire gauze, about six inches square. The gas is turned on and lit above the wire gauze. It burns in a conical flame, which is yellow at the top and blue at the base. When the gas pressure is strong, the flame roars continuously. When the gas is turned off, so as to stop the roaring altogether, the flame burns steadily and exhibits no more sensitiveness than an ordinary flame. By turning on the gas slowly and steadily, a critical point will be reached at which almost any noise will cause it to roar and become non-luminous. Any degree of sensitiveness may be attained by careful adjustment of the gas supply. A quiet room is required for this experiment. The rustle of clothes, the ticking of a clock, a whisper, a snap of the finger, the dropping of a pencil, or in fact almost any noise, will cause it to drop, become non-luminous and roar. It dances perfect time to a tune whistled staccato and not too rapidly, concludes Scientific American, from which the cuts here shown are reprinted.

Fear When in High Places.

Among the many curious psychical experiences that are now attracting attention, the one to which the term "acrophobia" has been applied has many points of interest. It refers to an exaggerated condition of fear when in high places. Dr. Verga has recently described the phenomena in his own case. Though by nature not at all timid, all his courage leaves him when above ground. He has palpitations in mounting a step ladder, finds it extremely unpleasant to ride on top of a coach, or even to look out of a first story window. His idiosyncrasy forbids him to use an elevator, and the mere thought of those who have cast themselves down from high places causes tingling all over his person. The thought of the earth spinning through space is enough to cause discomfort. He finds this fear growing upon him as sight and hearing become less acute, and what walking in high places was formerly possible for him is getting more and more difficult. A greater or less degree of this fear is undoubtedly quite common. A very intense form of it seems perfectly consistent with normal functions.

Self Developing Photographic Plates.

Self developing photographic dry plates are the latest novelty, in which the chemicals used in developing are applied in the solid form to the back of the plate. After the exposure it is only necessary to immerse the plate in a tray of water, when the developing salts will dissolve and form a bath all ready for use. The convenience of this method to travelers and photographic amateurs away from their base of supplies will undoubtedly be very great.

New Method of Teaching Chemistry.

At a recent discourse on chemistry Professor Heinrich Hoffman, of Berlin, illustrated the atomic constitution of organic compounds by the use of the ballet. Each girl was dressed in an individual solid color and represented an atom, and the grouping and movements of the atoms is said to have been very effective. Chemistry has now become a very popular study with the students, and the attendance at the lectures very full.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE.

The "Marine" Curtain—A New and Charming Bit of Decorative Furnishing.

A novel and very charming curtain is a "marine" of sea green satin with large fish appliqued on it. These fish are made of gold and silver gauze over red and gray silk respectively. Some have velvet heads and beaded eyes, and all have scales worked in silk. Over the sea green foundation two nets of fine string are artistically draped, one dark brown, the other of a reddish tone. These hang from a thick silk cord fastened to each end of the curtain rod, carried right across down each side, threaded through the nets and knotted at intervals. The nets are wide, and are caught up into graceful folds, leaving the foundation exposed in places.

Imprisoned in the meshes of various spoils of the deep, pink and gray plush starfish, delicately tinted anemones fringed with silk, crabs and fish of several kinds; bunches of many colored sea weeds, made of narrow ribbons are caught here and there, a quantity of glass drops are fastened on the net to heighten the effect. This idea could be utilized in many ways for smaller pieces; it would make a pretty and cool looking decoration for a fire grate in the hot weather.

Fish Baked with Wine.

An excellent way to serve fish is to bake it with wine, and for this the following is Mrs. Henderson's recipe: Soak some bread in water, squeeze it dry and add an egg well beaten. Season with pepper, salt and a little parsley or thyme. Stuff the fish with this dressing. Grease the baking pan (one just right size for holding the fish with butter; season the fish on top and put it in the pan with about two cups of boiling water; baste it well, adding more boiling water when necessary. About twenty minutes before serving pour over it a cup of sour wine and a small piece of butter; put half a lemon sliced into the gravy; baste the fish well again. When it is thoroughly baked remove it from the pan, garnish the top with the slices of lemon; finish the sauce in the baking dish by adding a little butter rubbed to a paste in some flour; strain, skim, and serve in a sauce boat.

A Bedspread in White and Gold.

Coarse linen sheeting makes an effective bedspread, with a bold design of large lilies and leaves applied on it in gold colored sateen, worked with silk of two shades of gold deeper than the sateen. The design is traced on the sateen, tacked on the sheeting and chain stitched around the outlines; then, when the edges are cut away, the design stands out on the surface and is finished off with long, "spiky" stitches. The veining of the leaves, etc., is done in long stitch. A broad band of gold colored sateen is added as a border all around. A heavy counterpane may be of coarse brown blanketing or of serge, with very large poppies and leaves or sunflowers or some large design worked in worsteds. The work is easy and pleasant.

Russian Mode of Cleaning Furs.

Fur garments should always be clean when packed away, and now that the season for storing them for the summer is at hand, the following description, by a foreign journal, of how furs are cleaned and renovated in Russia—the land of furs—is interesting: Some rye flour is put into a pot and heated upon a stove, with constant stirring as long as the hand can bear the heat. The flour is then spread over the fur and rubbed into it. After this the fur is brushed with a very clean brush, or, better, is gently beaten until all the flour is removed. The fur thus resumes its natural luster and appears absolutely as if new.

To Waterproof Hammocks.

Hammocks that are allowed to hang out most of the time are soon rotted by the action of the weather. It is said that they may be made "waterproof" by immersing in boiling linseed oil, and leaving them in it for a day or two. Then with a cloth rub off all the oil possible, and when the netting is dried it will last much longer than it otherwise would.

To Clear a Waste Pipe.

A plumber's advice for clearing a clogged pipe is to pour in at night enough liquid soda lye to fill the "trap" or bent part of the pipe, and to prevent water running in it till next morning. During the night the lye will probably convert the obstruction into soft soap and the first current of water will wash it away.

Broiled Oysters.

Make as many nice slices of buttered toast as there are persons to serve; allow half a dozen oysters for each one, dip the oysters in melted butter, lay them between the bars of a fine wire gridiron, and broil them over a hot fire until their edges curl, dust them with pepper, and serve them on the toast.

The "Ingle Nook" Couch.

An attractive article of decorative furniture is an "ingle nook" couch, simple in form, with woodwork consisting of flat bars in polished wood or wood enameled in any color liked. The seat is cushioned to match the general tone of the room.

Floral Novelties.

Exquisite taste and skill is shown in the professional arrangement of flowers, both natural and artificial. Especially is this noticeable in recent productions of florists, and Easter will doubtless be greeted with marvels in the way of artistic floral designs. The combinations of flowers, foliage, fruit, grasses and seeds, in rich stands or baskets, are always seemingly careless, but in reality the perfection of art, giving most charming and graceful effects. Numberless original ideas are carried out by adepts in the art of designing and trimming graceful floral novelties. Satin, plush and ribbons are largely used in their construction. A sketch of one of the simpler arrangements is here given.

FLOWER BASKET.

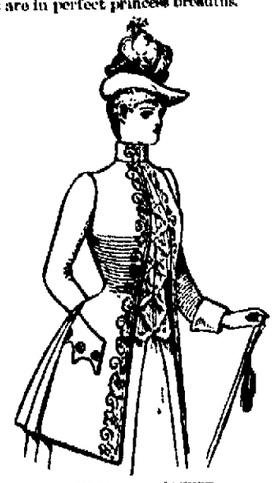
This basket, for fruit as well as flowers, is mounted in silk brocade. Some beautiful baskets are merely flower trimmed, but filled with bonbons. Most of these elegant baskets and stands can be converted into receptacles for needlework materials and utensils, when the flowers have faded or the sweets have been consumed, by removing the tin linings which protect the rich materials from being soiled. All these attractive novelties represent most fitting and favored Easter gifts.

WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

SUBJECTS SURE TO INTEREST OUR LADY READERS.

Fashions in Spring Wraps and Jackets. Breton and Pompadour Jackets—Long Wraps and Picturesque Wraps with Full High Shouldered Sleeves.

The long cloth wraps introduced for spring wear are, many of them, modifications of the close fitting redingote and the Russian cloak so much worn during the past winter. Some of the new redingotes seen at the recent openings are in perfect princess breadths.



POMPADOUR JACKET.

A picturesque wrap is a jacket of cloth, with full, high-shouldered sleeves of velvet. The Breton jacket has been revived, with its wide vest of white cloth or other contrasting colors. Then there are short jackets of checked material, made with a turn over notched collar. In our cut is shown an imported model known as the pompadour jacket. The one illustrated is made in fine Gobelin gray cloth, and trimmed with gold tinsel and gray cord. The waistcoat is of white satin, and this is trimmed with a lace jabot. The buttons are gray in color, and show on their surface gold fleur-de-lys.

Novelties in Fans.

The varieties in fans have rarely before been equaled. Quite original is a gauze fan, with scented and carved ribs, having at the edge a close set row of butterflies, also in gauze, set wing to wing and standing up when the fan is opened. These fold well, and are much to be admired. One fan over the other would seem to be the idea, and in another kind a complete upper gauze fan is cut out in diamonds, so that the under part shows through. Another design has a hive in the center, with bees hovering over. Some are painted with large iris in three colors, rather bright, the edge of the fan following the outline of the flower. Another has a series of rosettes in relief along the edge, which, on inspection, also takes the form of butterflies. There is, again, another novelty—a gauze fan, with ivory sticks, much gilt, and painted on an indented design, which almost covers the rib. The gauze attached to this framework forms a series of horizontal stripes, sometimes filled in with lace or lace insertion, sometimes left entirely open. Others have the floral designs perforated round.

French Petticoats.

The daintiest underclothing worn in this country is of French make, and in the accompanying sketch are illustrated two pleasing styles in petticoats.

EVENING PETTICOAT. UNDER PETTICOAT.

The evening petticoat is of white crape or nun's veiling, relieved with vertical bands of flowered or moire ribbon. These bands begin at the waist and form a loop at the lower edge. The second figure in the same cut shows an under petticoat of shot silk, trimmed with pinked out flounces. The straight front is also pinked out to form deep scallops, one side being turned back to show off the darkest tint.

Worth Gowns.

Worth retains his partiality for handsome black gowns, and for those of next summer has returned to the use of plain grenadine, the genuine old fashioned Hernani, which he combines with black sprigged net, and selects the patterns that come with colored borders. Thus black grenadine with a border of bright green stripes woven in it to represent green silk braid is made up over black silk, except in the plastron and full sleeves, which are of bright green silk under Chantilly net with small figures. The bodice, bluntly pointed in front and back, is made of finely tucked grenadine, coming from the shoulders and sides in bias rows of tucks over the fitted silk lining. The right side laps on the left of the bust, and a plaiting of the grenadine forming a fichu like collar crosses the back and edges the lapped front. Black net shirred over green silk fills up the space at the throat, and green faille ribbon two inches wide passes around the high collar and is tied in a bow on the left side. The green silk lining of the sleeves is slightly loose, and over this black net is placed quite full at the top, and is gathered to a wristband or bracelet of the ribbon with bow like that of the collar.

The skirt has the green border across the foot of the front breadth, which is in large loose plaits, and also extending up the sides to the belt. The back has very little draping, but a great deal of fullness. The green ribbon is twisted lightly around the edge of the waist, and falls in bands in different lengths down the sides of the skirt.

Ribbons are much used on black net dresses to give to them their only touch of color. For entire black net dresses the very large meshed nets are used, and are sometimes striped lengthwise in the waist with faille ribbons that taper in and out with the waist and below it. Other net dresses have glossy black moire ribbon, set underneath the net to take away its too great luster, around the foot of the skirt, and also down the waist.—Harper's Bazar.

Accordion Plaits.

Accordion plaits are employed in the making of dress skirts. A pretty court petticoat worn by a young lady at a recent ball was made with tulle, having some three rows of ribbon on it, all plaited in this style, with the effect that it expanded at every movement of the wearer, and then returned to its original place. The accordion plaits can be applied as panels to almost any material, and in thicker stuffs to yokes for bodices.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE.

Sir Morell Mackenzie's Remedy for Tonsilitis—A Novel Accident.

In a lecture at the Edinburgh Eye, Ear and Throat hospital on acute and chronic tonsilitis, Sir Morell Mackenzie lately expressed his preference for guiacum as a remedy at the outset. The guiacum is made into lozenges containing about three grains each. Nine cases out of ten rapidly recover when one of these lozenges is given every two hours at the commencement of the attack of tonsilitis. Sir Morell sometimes also applies locally a little bismuth and opium, or an eighth of a grain of morphia with a quarter of a grain of starch, because the problem is not only to cure the patient but to keep him comfortable until he is cured.

Sometimes the guiacum causes some diarrhea, but this is rather an advantage, and the morphia usually soon checks it as well as allays the slight stinging sensation produced by the guiacum upon the throat. He uses this treatment in acute inflammations of any part of the back of the throat, and after an experience of fully twenty years pronounces it really specific.

Biting the Finger Nails.

A novel accident resulting from a habit of very common prevalence among nervous people, is described by Dr. J. Tuthill, of Chicago. A young lady presented herself at my office, complaining of a constant irritation in her throat. Two weeks previously she had been taken with a severe "sore throat," which was treated by a neighboring physician. Under his care, she says, the inflammation quickly subsided, but there still remained a sensation of irritation. Examination revealed a small fleshy looking object, about the size of a kernel of wheat, adherent to the tissues posterior to the left tonsil, by one end.

The other parts of the throat were normal. The little mass could not be detached by a cotton covered probe, but by the use of forceps it was easily removed, and on examination proved to be a piece of finger nail, which had become covered by a cheesy deposit. A broken piece of the nail was also removed from under the mucous membrane at the same spot by a sharp pointed probe. The patient then confessed to the habit of biting her finger nails, and, moreover, could remember that a day or two previous to the onset of her throat trouble a piece of nail which she had bitten off had become lost in her mouth, but after it had caused a fit of coughing she had forgotten about it until reminded by my discovery.

The Best Time to Bathe.

The best time to bathe, according to London Lancet, is just before going to bed, as any danger of catching cold is thus avoided, and the complexion is improved by keeping warm for several hours after leaving the bath. A couple of pounds of bran put into a thin bag and then in the bath tub is excellent for softening the skin. It should be left to soak in a small quantity of water several hours before being used. The internal aids to a clear complexion are most of them well known. The old fashioned remedy of sulphur and molasses is considered among the best. Charcoal powdered and taken with water is said to be excellent, but it is most difficult to take. A strictly vegetable and fruit diet is followed by many for one or two weeks.

Yolk of Egg Makes the Hair Grow.

Experience has convinced a Scientific American correspondent that it is best to keep all oils and grease from the hair. He says: Don't let barbers oil it. I find wetting with water best. At least once a week rub the yolk of an egg, or half of it, well into the hair and scalp, and rinse off thoroughly with tepid water. It will promote growth and color, probably largely due to the sulphur in the egg. This course has started a new growth of hair with me, not very thick, but better than none at all.

Vocal Music and Sound Lungs.

A recent writer says that those nations which are given to the cultivation of vocal music are strong and vigorous, with broad, expansive chests. Vocal music is a good lung exercise; it increases expansion of the lung tissue; it calls into action the entire lung, thus making the apices less likely to develop organic disease.

An Agreeable Remedy.

For hoarseness or sore throat roast a lemon slowly until it is thoroughly done, soft, but not broken. Cut a hole in the top while hot, fill it with granulated sugar and eat just before going to bed. The effect is to induce quiet perspiration and "cut" the tough mucus that alters the voice.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE.

Some of the Sufferings of Shy People—How One May Become a Cool Veteran.

The English are said to be the shyest people in the world, and therefore, according to Mrs. Sherwood, they are described as the best hosts in the world, being masters of the "letting alone" system. Thus the guest has the enviable privilege of spending the day as he pleases when at an English country house. He need not talk when he does not choose; he need not give his opinion of "Robert Elsmere;" he can be silent as to the merits of the "black man" question; he is not, to use an old Yankee word, "pestered"—a great boon to a shy man. No doubt this same shyness has been the secret of what has been called rudeness in great men. No doubt Napoleon suffered horribly from embarrassment in society.

There are certain parties which to a shy man are eternal. They never end. They are like the old fashioned ideas of a state of torment; they grow momentarily hotter and more stifling. His feet become feet of clay, nothing to stand on, only good to stumble with. Hands are cold, trembling, useless. There is a disagreeable feeling in the back of the neck, and a spinning sensation in the brain. Perhaps the severest wound is inflicted by the pitying eyes of the woman who pities him most. He reads there the mirror of his miserable shyness. "And this humiliation, too!" he asks, as she offers to show him some photographs.

Women are seldom troubled with shyness at the age at which men suffer most. Perhaps that and the talent for writing letters and a fluency in talking are nature's compensations for making them the weaker vessel. Cruel are those women, and most to be reprobated, who laugh at a bashful man. It is the higher order of human beings whom bashfulness attacks. It is the precursor of many excellences, like the vigil of the knight, and if it is patiently and bravely borne the knight is thrice a hero. It is this recollection which can alone sustain the bashful man under his sufferings.

Very shy men have often become very attractive men of society. The first refuge, though, of the bashful of either sex is repellant—they assume an air of hauteur. It is a natural fence, a convenient armor, and many a man and many a woman has fought her battle behind it through life. No doubt it has been the armor of many a so called cold person.

The sufferings of the shy would fill a volume. It is a nervous torture for which no part of our organization is to blame. No one can reason it away. One can endure. Some people, finding the play not worth the candle, give up society and the world; others go on and suffer, becoming cool veterans who fear no ball party however overwhelming it may be.

AMERICAN FABLES.

THE FISH AND THE FISHER.

A Fisherman, who had Waited Patiently for Several hours for a Bite, finally began Bewailing his hard Luck, Exclaiming:

"I have been Patient and Persevering and Faithful, and yet nothing has come to Reward me!"

A Carp, who had been lying in the shadow near by, now rose to the surface and replied:

"What you say, My Friend, is all very True, but you do not stop to Consider that the greater your Luck the fewer the Carp left in the Pond."

Moral—When Lawyers are in Luck no Community is at Peace.

THE PEASANT AND HIS ADVISERS.

A Peasant who had Bought him a plat of ground couldn't make up his mind what to sow thereon, and he asked the Advice of the Birds.

"By all means, Sow Wheat," was the reply.

When he asked the Advice of the Animals the reply was:

"Put in Corn and Vegetables, of course."

The Insects Advised that he raise Seeds of various sort, and the Fish recommended that the Land be Converted into a Pond. When Autumn came the Field was grown to Weeds Alone, and as the Peasant was Lamenting that he had raised nothing whatever of Value a Sage who was passing by Replied:

Moral—"He Who Takes Every Man's Advice had better have none at all."

THE BOY AND THE RAT.

A Boy who had caught a Rat in a Trap was about to Dispatch it by Drowning when the Rodent began Bewailing his sad Fate and pathetically inquired:

"Have I ever injured you, that you seek my Life?"

"Never," was the reply.

"Would you be the Loser by restoring me to Liberty?"

"Not at all."

"Then why not turn me loose? You seem to Feel for me."

"That's exactly the Trouble," replied the Boy. "Father has been scattering Poison all over the cellar, and I'm afraid you will get some of it and Die a Lingering Death. I'm doing the Mercy Act by Drowning you."

In the Interest of Science.

Dr. Pillsbury—How de do, doctor? What's the news?

Dr. Squills—Nothing new; only I had an interesting case a few days ago.

Dr. Pillsbury—Yes? What was it?

Dr. Squills—I performed a wonderful operation on Mr. Fresh's boy's eye—little Johnny Fresh. He had a fearful case of cataract, and I saved the poor little fellow's eye.

Dr. Pillsbury—That's good! How's the boy?

Dr. Squills—Oh, the boy died.—Drake's Magazine.

Some Another for the Bustle.

"Sure Enough."

'Twas at the usual trysting place,
The usual summer breeze was blowing;
With anxious thoughts I scanned her face
For one sweet glance of love bestowing;
I vowed by moon—I vowed by stars—
I vowed by Venus, Saturn, Mars
(These stars were shining at the time.)
But when I strove to fan the flame
Of fickle love—and bag the game!
Alas! I met with this rebuff—
(To all my eloquence sublime)
She coyly questioned, "Sure enough?"

I pleaded long, I pleaded hard,
While yet the summer breeze was sighing,
I played my very best trump card
And swore a constancy undying
I searched her eyes—I searched her face—
I searched for e'en the slightest trace
(The oak leaves trembled in the breeze)
Of love returned—a glance—a token.
Ah, me! that I had ever spoken
She coolly rearranged her cuff
(Misplaced by surreptitious squeeze),
And softly murmured, "Sure enough!"

I gazed into her dark brown eyes
And sought to solve those words perplexing,
Stupidity! not to surmise
That her own heart she was indexing.
I clasped her close—I held her fast—
Her lips pressed close to mine at last.
(What mattered it if the moon was shining?)
Her meaning now to me was plain,
For when she spoke those words again
I saw that she'd been playing bluff
(Her little hand in mine confining)
When she had questioned "Sure enough!"

I've flirted with the Yankee maid
Who, when you plead, says: "You don't say!"
I've loved the western girl—afraid
To tell her in the usual way
Both types are dear, and each can play
The deuce with hearts the livelong day
(Whether or not the stars are shining),
But sweeter, more distracting—these—
Whispered by southern girl to tease
Man's heart, e'en given in rebuff,
(When heart is sore and love repining!)
These artless, sweet words, "Sure enough."

STAR OFFICE TELEPHONE NUMBER 51.

—Don't fail to hear the musical prodigy, Blind Tom, at Music Hall, Friday night.

P. L. Berringer, who has been sick a short time at his home on Jefferson street, is now able to attend.

C. H. DeLong, of Columbus, was in the city Wednesday, in the interest of his photograph business.

Secure seats for the Blind Tom entertainment. This will be Marion's only opportunity of hearing him.

Fred Pafford, of Valley, has accepted a position as agent for the Singer Manufacturing Co. of this place.

John Quigley of the C. and A. engine 52, has taken a short lay off and gone on a fishing excursion in the west.

Ice cream and home made candies every day and every evening, at M. E. Motley & Son's, opposite Star office.

The condition of A. T. Henderson, who has been reported quite sick at his home on north East street, is considered worse.

Order your season's ice of the Marion Ice Co. and secure pure spring lake ice. Office at W. J. Grills, opposite post office. [thsat]

We notice several of the business men putting up new awnings, which adds considerable to the appearance of the business blocks.

McCoy & Son will not keep open Sundays, but orders for ice cream on Sundays may be left Saturday and will be delivered Sunday.

Mrs. Maggie Patton, accompanied by Miss Lulu and Wallace Whitcomb, left Wednesday on a short visit with the Watkins family at Prospect.

John Crowley has torn down the old barn in the rear of his residence on north East street, which changes the looks of his property considerably for the better.

—The razing of the old Bennett building has its attractions for the idlers and for some who are not idlers. The average Marionite has his full share of ordinary curiosity.

—The Secretary of the Agricultural Society, on Wednesday, accepted the bid of W. W. Simons, of Troy, for the exclusive candy and pop corn privilege at the Fair.

C. H. V. and L. engine 39, which has been doing switching work in the yard at this place, was taken to the Columbus shops today for a thorough overhauling. It will be replaced in the yard by engine 11.

—The Board of Education met this morning and accepted and paid for the furnaces and dry closets in the new school building. Mr. Hooker of the Smead company, is now putting on new furnace and new floors for the Central school building.

And it is not dead yet. The Mt. Gilead Leader contains this paragraph: "Direct or Allen Deering was in Zanesville last Saturday on business connected with our Black Diamond railway enterprise, and reports that the road is not dead, but that it is working about lively. Don't talk too loud. There's evidently a hen on."
